THE ARCHON MEMMIUS [PEISAN]DROS KOL[LYTEU]S

The archon's name (cognomen) in IG II² 2040 of A.D. 127/8, whose ending is only preserved, appears to be recoverable, as determined from a photograph (1). In the IG II² edition, the text of this ephebic inscription reads [άγα]θη [τύχη· νίκη Καίσαρος Αδριανοῦ (hederan)] / [οἱ ἐφην]· bεύοιντες ἐν τῷ ἐπὶ Μεμμίου (hederan) / ...? ...[ροῦ Κολ[λυτέως] ἄρχοντος [ἐν νιαυτῷ], τετάρ[τῳ ἀπὸ τῇ]ς πρώτη[ς / ἐπιδημίας τοῦ [μεγίστον
Ἀ]τοκρά[πορος] / - - . However, this text can be updated from the photograph (fractura below line 5).

[άγα]θη [τύχη· νίκη Καίσαρος Αδριανοῦ ἄρχοντος ἄρχοντος]
[οἱ ἐφην]· bεύοιντες ἐν τῷ ἐπὶ Μεμμίου ἄρχοντος
[Πεισάν]δροῦ Κολ[λυτέως] ἄρχοντος [ἐν νιαυτῷ]

4 [νιαυτῷ,] τετάρ[τῳ ἀπὸ τῇ]ς πρώτη[ς]
[ἐπιδημίας] τοῦ [μεγίστον αὐ]τοκρά[πορος]

Only the upper tip of the dotted letter in the archon's name (line 3) is preserved, and it probably belongs to a Δ rather than to an Α. Moreover, the proposed restoration of the archon's name accords well with the indicated missing letters and with Athenian prosopography of the Imperial period. Memmius Peisandros is the only Memmius whose name can be restored in IG II² 2040. There is also Mem(mius) Alexandros of IG II² 2046, line 20, but he was ephebe in A.D. 134/5 (2). The Memmii in Attica can be found in the writer's dissertation (3), pp. 555, 564 (No. 778: Memmios [...?] [ros Kol[lyteus)], 568, 575 (No. 569: Gaios Memmios Sabeinos Peisandros), 583 (No. 845: Mem(mius) Alexandros), 586 and 591 (index). Memmius Peisandros' cīvitas may be traceable, through inheritance, to G. Memmius Regulus, son of P. Memmius Regulus who governed Achaea (and Macedonia and Moesia) in A.D. 35-44 (Nos. 532 and 563 in the said dissertation).

Memmius Peisandros also is mentioned in IG II² 3531, lines 1-2: Γάιον Μέμμιον Σαβεῖν Πεῖσανδρον. Kevin Clinton has commented on the complexity of the text of IG II² 3531, and lines 1-2 have been recognized as constituting a separate text (4). Moreover, he examined a squeeze of lines 1-2, and a third line has been read. His transcription is reproduced below for convenience’s sake (5).

A new text of this honorary inscription may be presented here, incorporating the new evidence.

[Γάιον Μ]έμμιον Σαβεῖν
[ν]Πεῖσανδρον
[Koλλυτέα] τόν νν
[ἐπώνυμον ἄρχον]
[τα ... ... ... ... ]

K. Clinton’s transcription suggests that the praenomen may have been abbreviated, but previously it has been reproduced as fully read, and consequently it extends 3 1/2 letters to the left of the main text.

G. Memmius Sabeinos Peisandros was undoubtedly from the deme Kollytos, and the prytanis 'Ισιδώρως Σαβίνου (Koλλυτέας) of Agora XV (6), No. 337, line 15 (of apparently med. s. II p.) (7), is probably a son of his, even though the nomen Memmius is lacking. However, in the prytany catalogue, the nomenclature follows Greek precedents, that is, as far as Isidoros’ full identity is concerned. Isidoros may have had a son, Πίστος Εἰσιδωρον Κολυτείς), who appears as ephebe in IG II² 2103, line 56 (57), of 172/3 (8).
